MARESIAN POSTURING IN THE SOUTH FLY BY DRAGON IDENTIFIED TROUBLE ABOUNDS TO THE WEST

Mare Launches New Fleet

Eight New War Frigates

Friends or Foes???

High Magus Tolarion Nervous!

As dawn crested over the great Temple of Light in Tekata, the gold of the steeple shone down onto a new fleet in the Bay of Light.

Launched overnight to avoid prying eyes, Eight new, three-masted war frigates, majestically bedecked with gold and white finishings all over, floated arrogantly in the

Sevilla in Support

In a strange turn of events, the neutral nation of Sevilla has come out in support of the new Marese war fleet, expressing “a desire to bring safety back to our trade along the Vestarian coast”.

Representatives of the state also state that this was a “a long overdue rebalancing of power aware from the Empire, and back into the hands of the people.”

Trouble on the Antaract?

The wild plains on our is seemingly yet again besieged by undead and nasty critters, with traders along the route reporting numerous violent clashes between the GTS (Goblin Trade Security) forces and the threats.

Additional guard forces are being sent to the area to investigate, and the NIS has issued a statement to avoid the area for the next few weeks until it is resolved.

Iceblue Returned

Storm-Nestor

Alliance on Horizon?

Marshal Sevenswords has returned the ancestral battle axe of the Skyshaft Storm Dwarves back to the Skyshaft Armory.

Word has reached the Times that the return of the axe (previously in the care of Karandar I) may improve relations with the dwarves to a point where the current mutual defensive pact may mature into a full alliance with the Storm Hills.

An Alliance could mean a lot for the fledgling empire, for the in the coming months it will surely be beset by all manner of challenges.

Thass??

Imperials near Nestor?!

Rumours have reached the times of a company of Thassian Imperials travelling near Alepton and the Antaract Plains. Currently their intentions have not been made clear to the Times, however anyone who encounter the soldiers should report them to the Guard immediately, as they are considered to be dangerous and of interest to the authorities.

Mistclaw

Who is this new Great Father?

The massive blue dragon who flew over the city almost two weeks past, has now been revealed to be the historic figure of Mistclaw, an ancient ally of the dread Algarazz the Red, who ruled over the Antaract and Delagore regions for centuries.

By all appearances, Mistclaw has moved into Algarazz's lair, seemingly for the long haul.

News has reached the Times that allies of the Blue is en-route to the area, and with the military sorely pressed already by the unrest in the Riverlands, and the constant presence of an awakened Icy Demigod, Galmadre, in the nearby lake, an answer to Mistclaw's residence doesn't appear to be forthcoming.

The Cassiopean guard are being mobilized to ready for the threads, and have requested assistance from the Captial.

Nestor Guard:

Searching for answers or information on a "Ooze Queen" loose in the city.

Recent outbreaks of gelatinous oozes have led the Nestorian Guard on a merry chase for weeks now.

New information leaking from the Guard has suggested they are now aware of a "Queen" ooze that is spreading spores throughout the city, which are then gestating into themselves and causing trouble in the city.

With the latest outbreak bringing the city tanner district to a halt, the search in on to apprehend the owner of the ooze, who now faces potential jail time, or at least the cost of damage to the city so far.

Official response from Guard Sargent Boots states that "the guard are investigating all potential leads and sources at this time".

Dansa Street Gangs

The Mare Fleet

From Front

... floated in the harbour, ready to set out and impose Maresian rule over the Bay of Mardak once more.

Mare, once geographically and historically the ruler of the local seas, lost most of it's fleet when The DwimmerHome exploded into a molten fireball, showering the continent with lava and rock. The shipyards and docks of the capital was especially showered, and while Mare was tight lipped about the losses publicly, rumours say more than 85 vessels of the fleet were scuttled in the following weeks.

Our own Arch Magus, Tolarion has raised concerns at Mare yet again flexing it's military muscle in the region, with concerns that they may seek to re-establish a balance of power that once indirectly led to the brutal and bloody war with the Thassian regime. (...cont)

With Mare once again joining the politics of the region, it lead to the question of what this might to to the already extremely precarious situation the Empire has found itself within.

All eyes are now upon the Thasians, as their response to this display of competency from Mare could be the catalyst that lights the whole region back on fire.
